

BRIDGE THE GAPS BETWEEN IT AND BUSINESS

We are a company of architects, designers and builders. We measure success by each link we forge between our customers' IT environments and the business goals they support. Our unique mix of insight, services and technology, plus an unsurpassed ability to execute, makes us an IT partner worth knowing.

Tap into our knowledge capital and reap the rewards of experience.

Leveraging Technology started in 1998 as an integration specialist. Customers soon sought our help with issues beyond the technology. We developed increasingly deeper insights into business and information architecture and our customers' upstream challenges. As we did so, we evolved into IT partners and leaders.

Today, customers partner with us for agile development and disciplined project management across the IT lifecycle, in part because our frameworks, proprietary methodologies and unique Capability Partnership™ are proven to get results. Customers also recognize that our people drive success by mapping projects back to business strategy at virtually every stage -- from assessment, planning and design, to delivery and management.

“Leveraging Technology is the best in the business. I'm not sure where we would be if I didn't have your support.”

Our professional services are designed to enable agility, flexibility and acceleration by applying our enterprise architecture and integration expertise to your systems challenges.

Enterprise Architecture

- We create alignment and effectiveness by building linkages between your business and the technical delivery team.
- We achieve this and differentiate ourselves by taking a practical approach to Business Architecture, Information Architecture, Application Architecture and Infrastructure Architecture.

Integration

- We simplify the management of your increasingly complex systems environments using our proven Integration Architecture Framework that aligns people, process and technology.
- We make it easy to maintain your performance with flexible Managed Services and industry-leading MSI-Aware™ monitoring and management solutions.

Working with Leveraging Technology is different than working with other consulting firms because we look at each client's organization and not just the technologies in place. We partner with clients in unique ways to help them align people, process and technology to build the capabilities needed to generate near-term value and longer-term agility and efficiency.
